Hadrians Wall Path

Hadrian's Wall Path was opened in 2002 and proved an immediate success with walkers from both the UK and abroad. The route follows the line of Hadrian's Wall – the northern which was constructed by Roman emperor Hadrianus between AD120 and 128 to protect the northern extreme of the Roman Empire.

It crosses the country from coast to coast - from Wallsend, near Newcastle, through the rolling border countryside of Northumberland, continuing on to the historic city of Carlisle and finally to the flat plains of the Solway Coast. At every mile along the Wall there is a milecastle with two watchtowers in-between. Although sections have been plundered for local houses, the central section is very well preserved, as well as the various forts and milecastles on the way.

 Full Route Length

 Shortest Break Length

Grade

Easy to Moderate

Of the National Trails trails we cover, this is the easiest. The route covers rolling countryside and moorlands, but not mountains. Many people with limited walking experience have completed this route.

Terrain: Varied. Urban footpaths for day 1, then generally fields and parkland until Housesteads. Moorland up to 350m for the central section, then more fields/parkland to Carlisle, followed by flat coastal plain to Bowness on Solway.

What's it like underfoot? Pretty good. Well maintained paths throughout, although sections can get a bit muddy in wet weather.

How Much Up & Down? Not too much! Generally rolling countryside with some gentle ups and downs. In the central section there are numerous short steep climbs.

Signposting: Good.

Navigation: Pretty straightforward. Well defined paths, and good signposting.

Route

Wallsend to Newburn

The walk starts in Wallsend in Newcastle upon Tyne, on the site of Segedunum, a fort with an interesting museum. It follows the River Tyne into the city to the redeveloped central quayside, centered on the 'Blinking Eye' Millennium Bridge, which leads to the Baltic Arts Centre and distinct Sage Building. The route continues besides the river to Newburn, on the outskirts of Newcastle.

Newburn to Humshaugh

The route continues pleasantly through the Tyne Valley Country Park before climbing to the hilltop village of Heddon and onwards through rolling countryside. Turrets and milecastles become part of the landscape. The final 2 miles are marked by a descent through pleasant parkland to the North Tyne Valley and the picturesque villages of Wall, Chollerford and Humshaugh, (all of which we use for overnight stops).

Humshaugh to Twice Brewed

The route soon reaches Northumbria National Park and classic Roman Wall country with expansive views and undulating moorland. The route climbs steadily at first, past turrets and a Brocolitia Roman fort; it then becomes more steeply undulating on reaching the Whin Sill escarpment.

The views of open moorland, the South Tyne Valley, the Pennines and of the wall itself following ridges ahead are breathtaking. The route passes the well preserved Housesteads Fort and continues in a similar dramatic fashion to Twice Brewed and on to your accommodation.

Twice Brewed to Gilsland

Twice Brewed is a good place to schedule in a rest day so you have time to explore the Vindolanda or Housesteads Roman forts. The route continues to follow the escarpment, over rugged crags of Windshield, equally as impressive as the previous section. It passes the remains of Great Chester's Fort and the Roman Army Museum and continues to the pretty villages of Greenhead and Gilsland.

Gilsland to Carlisle

Just after Gilsland the fort of Birdoswald is reached, after which the route continues high above the steep sided Irthington Gorge, before beginning a gradual descent at the village of Banks. Rich agricultural landscape and parkland replaces the moorland as the route drops steadily through the w: www.mickledore.co.uk villages of Walton and Irthington before reaching the River Eden for the final section into the historic border city of Carlisle. Carlisle's history is very much evident with its cathedral, castle and old city walls

Carlisle to Bowness-on-Solway

The final section is a complete contrast to all that has gone before; initially along the banks of the Eden and then across the pancake flat salt marshes of the Solway Firth. The mountains of the Lake District are visible to the south and Scotland is just across the water to the north. This expansive estuary is internationally renowned for its thriving bird life and the area has a peaceful charm of its own.

Additional Days

Twice Brewed

Twice Brewed is an excellent place for a rest day
- in the middle of the most dramatic section of the wall, and close to the best preserved Roman forts.
Vindolanda can take the best part of a day - there are extensive remains, a comprehensive museum,
and often an archeological dig in progress.
Housesteads and the Roman Army Museum are also close by.

Carlisle

Carlisle is an historic border city, complete with castle and cathedral. Tullie House Museum has a lot of Roman artefacts and is worth a visit.

The cathedral was founded in 1122 and is open every day. The castle has dominated the city for 9 centuries, and also houses a military museum – there are guided tours daily. There are plenty of shops and lots of places to eat or have coffee.

evaluation on each night's accommodation, which then gives us an insight in to the day-to-day operation, and lets us spot any potential issues before they become a problem. We have three former Keswick guest house owners on the staff – so we know the industry well.
