Guernsey Coastal Path

With its dramatic cliffs, secluded sandy bays, and turquoise waters, Guernsey offers some of the most stunning coastal scenery in the British Isles. Nestled in the Gulf of Saint-Malo off the Normandy coast, Guernsey covers an area of just 24 square miles, making it a compact yet captivating destination for coastal exploration. The Guernsey Coastal Path itself is a delightful 39 mile circuit of the island, beginning and ending in the capital, St Peter Port.

Guernsey is a paradise for wildlife enthusiasts and nature lovers. The island is famed for its diverse flora, which bursts into life throughout the year. The cliffs and heathlands are adorned with vibrant displays of wildflowers, including sea campion, red campion, nodding ox-eye daisies and the fleshy-leaved mesembryanthemum, once used to camouflage concrete bunkers. The coastal paths are quite simply a symphony of colour and fragrance, providing a sensory feast for walkers.

Birdlife on Guernsey is abundant, with a variety of resident and migratory species. Keep an eye out for peregrine falcons, kestrels, marsh harriers and sparrowhawks soaring above, while along the coastline, you'll spot oystercatchers, curlews, and variety of plovers. The island's cliffs and islets are a haven for seabirds such as puffins, razorbills, and guillemots, making every step a potential wildlife encounter.

Beyond its natural splendour, the Guernsey Coastal Path offers a window into the island's rich history and cultural heritage. As you walk, you'll discover ancient forts, picturesque chapels, and historic lighthouses. These landmarks tell the story of Guernsey's past, from its prehistoric dolmens to its strategic importance during World War II.

Prepare to be enchanted by the island's charm. Renowned for its mild climate, delectable cuisine, warm hospitality, and the promise of discovery around every corner, this is a journey that will leave you with lasting memories of Guernsey's rugged beauty and serene landscapes.

Essential Info

Length	5 - 6 Nights
Full Route Length	39 miles / 63 km

Grade

Easy to Moderate

Guernsey has a gentle landscape and with the exception of one 13 mile day on our shorter itinerary, daily trail distances don't exceed 11 miles, in fact most days vary between just 7 and 9 miles, therefore the vast majority of walkers will find walking the Guernsey Coastal Path a really comfortable experience.

Terrain: A combination of cliff and coastal paths, sandy beaches, some woodland, grassy commons and a few short stretches of road walking.

What's it like underfoot? For the most part the trail is on firm, dry surfaces, however some stretches can become muddy following heavy rain. Some of the steeper slopes benefit from concrete steps.

How Much Up & Down? Although the coastline is undulating and some sections have numerous ascents and descents, there are no hills to speak of and you will rarely find yourself much above 330 feet (100m).

Signposting & Navigation: There are very few signposts or waymarkers, however the guidebook is incredibly detailed and supported with a 1:15,000 map, therefore you should find it really straightforward. Helpfully, private roads and tracks tend to be clearly marked as such. Once out of built up areas and onto the trail coastal paths tend to be fairly easy to follow. Often there are several tracks, splitting for a time, then meeting up again.

It is important to note that Guernsey has one of the world's biggest tidal ranges. As much as 40 feet (12m) at spring tides. Please pay close attention to the tide tables and avoid venturing onto the beach when the tide is incoming as you can quickly become cut off. Do not attempt to walk from beach to beach around the foot the cliffs!

Weather: The weather on Guernsey tends to be a touch milder than the south of England, however you must be prepared because the weather can change quickly. Autumn is generally the wettest season. Whatever the time of year ensure you wear comfortable footwear and carry reliable waterproofs. It is important you carry plenty of water on warm days. As always, pack your floppy hat and sun cream!

Route

St Peter Port to Petit Bôt Bay

The opening stretch of the coastal path from St Peter Port to Fermain Bay happens to be one of the most popular walks on the island. Although relatively short, the path features numerous ascents and descents on flights of steps, with just enough woodland in places to give it a jungle-like feel, rather than a coastal walk. In spring, the path is adorned with a lovely carpet of bluebells, adding to the scenic beauty. Marker stones carved with place names guide the way to Fermain Bay, but be cautious of paths that lead steeply down to beaches and bays, as they usually result in having to climb back up!

Next up is Jerbourg Point which is also especially attractive when carpeted in flowers, and the vibrant colours help distract from the concrete structures built during the German Occupation. A network of cliff and coastal paths allow for a little variation on this stretch of the path.

Rugged bays and headlands flank Icart Point, providing ever-changing views, as the well-trodden path stretches round Saints Bay, Le Jaonnet Bay and on to Petit Bôt Bay.

Petit Bôt Bay to Vazon

The trail from Petit Bôt Bay to Pointe de la Moye, Le Gouffre and La Corbière is fairly adaptable, featuring numerous spur paths that invite exploration of the rugged headlands. Beyond La Corbière, expect a series of steps, ascending and descending, as you make your way to a prominent German observation tower at La Prévôté.

From La Prévôté to Mont Herault, a picturesque stretch of cliff path connects the German observation tower to an older watch house, offering breathtaking cliff views along the way.

The Pleinmont peninsula, located at the extreme southwestern tip of Guernsey, is rich in historical and natural attractions. Here, you'll find various lookouts and fortifications, ranging from small coastal batteries to large German bunkers and an imposing observation tower. The dramatic cliff scenery is complemented by an abundance of flowers and shrubs, and is a prime location for bird watching, with over 150 species recorded.

Beyond here is Rocquaine Bay. Your route will depend on the tide. At high tide, the only option is to follow a busy road that lacks a continuous pavement. However, at low tide, a beautiful sandy beach becomes accessible, offering a more pleasant walking experience. Though the walk around the bay is short, it is dotted with points of interest. Additionally, an optional extension to the island of Lihou is possible, but only at low water during spring tides.

Vazon to Les Dicqs

This section of the walk is really quite easy and starts with a pleasant stroll along the promenade. As you continue, the path meanders around a picturesque headland dominated by the historic Fort Hommet. Easy coastal paths and road walking lead you seamlessly to Cobo Bay, a charming destination known for its scenic beauty.

Don't miss the opportunity to climb up to Le Guet, a fine rocky viewpoint offering breathtaking panoramas. This short detour is especially rewarding on clear days, providing an unparalleled view of the surrounding coastline.

The easy walking continues as the trail winds around low, flowery points, eventually bringing you to the tranquil shores of Port Soif.

Between Port Soif and Le Dicqs, you'll encounter four delightful little headlands and five picturesque bays. Despite the proximity of the main coastal road, the area boasts plenty of coastal paths, and a well maintained footpath and cycleway run alongside the road, ensuring a pleasant and safe journey. This stretch of rugged coastal beauty, and accessible pathways, makes for a truly memorable experience.

Les Dicqs to St Peter Port

The final section of the trail includes all the headlands and bays on the north coast; Grand Havre, Baie de la Jaonneuse, L'Ancrese Bay and Fontelle Bay.

Take time to savour this stretch. There is a small fortification, Fort Pembroke, on the headland by Baie de la Jaonneuse which is worthy of hugging the coastline for.

L'Ancrese Common is a large public grassy common bordered by several beautiful beaches. This area is rich in history, featuring fortifications from the Napoleonic era and World War II bunkers, along with other significant historic sites. The common also boasts several ancient burial sites, including the La Varde Passage Grave & Millennium Stone, Les Fouillages, and the Le Dehus Burial Chamber, each offering a fascinating glimpse into the region's distant past.

Located at Fontenelle Bay on Guernsey's northern shore is Fort Doyle. Completed in 1805, the fort was an integral part of the island's fortification network designed to defend against potential French invasions. Initially, the fort was equipped with three 18-pounder cannons. During World War II, the occupying German forces significantly reinforced the area, adding three coastal defense guns, anti-aircraft guns, and mortars, making it a formidable stronghold.

Heading south, a simple walk round the built-up Belle Greve leads to the harbour in St Peter Port.

Additional Days

St Peter Port

Located on Guernsey's east coast with stunning views out to neighbouring islands of Herm and Sark, St Peter Port is a picturesque town with charming cobbled streets, blending history with exceptional restaurants and delightful local shops. It is also home to the 800 year old Castle Cornet as well as Hauteville House, once the home of Victor Hugo, and now a fascinating museum.

Popularly known as 'Town', St Peter Port is the island-hopping centre of the Bailiwick. Consider a day trip to Herm or Sark with our friends at Island Coachways.

Petit Bot Bay

All our Petit Bot Bay accommodations lie about a mile or so inland making them the perfect place from which to explore the German Underground Hospital and Ammunition Store, just a 30 minute or so walk, or a short bus ride away. Covering an area of roughly 6,950 square metres (75,000 square feet) this vast maze of tunnels is the largest structural reminder of the German Occupation of the Channel Islands.

Vazon

If you'd like an active beach day then Vazon Bay is the place to be. Why not try surfing? Guernsey Surf School are based at the bay and they teach all abilities. There's plenty of great food on offer at Vazon Bay with everything from light snacks and ice cream through to rooftop dining with amazing views of the beach.

Nearby, inland, is St Saviour's Reservoir and Nature Reserve. It's the largest reservoir on the island and is home to ducks, waders and occasionally kingfishers. Firecrests and flycatchers find cover in the conifers along the shore. The path around the reservoir is known as the Millennium Walk.

Client Feedback

We're proud of our reputation for quality holidays. There are plenty of customer reviews on our Website but here's a couple of comments to give you a flavour:

Greetings from Canada, we send our special thank you for all your hard work in putting together our 'Coast to Coast' trip. The trekking was hard but our B&B's were very nice. We met a lot of wonderful people along the way and had much fun in the pubs.

Waldemar Sambor, North Vancouver Canada.

Dear All, thank you so much for a wonderfully organised holiday. Everything was superb. The attention to detail was brilliant and made a long hard walk so much more enjoyable. Thank you. Would you use Mickledore again? Yes, and I'll recommend you to anyone. Brilliant service. Thank you.

Helen Finlay, Hampshire UK

Every arrangement made by Mickledore went smoothly. The hosts and accommodations were extremely well-vetted. We also felt we chose the right tour in terms of distance, the route, and the number of days (including the rest day which we used to much advantage, being able to take our time at Vindolanda). We found the hike challenging, but not overwhelming and we will highly recommend Mickledore to anyone who considers such tours.

Michael Pesch, Minnesota USA

All arrangements and planning responses were handled effectively and efficiently. Accommodation and baggage transfer all excellent and all went to plan. Very useful information provided about places to eat and where shops etc were located. Thanks for a great holiday we really enjoyed it.

Andrew & Christine Snell, Wiltshire UK

Holidays have been great adventures and experiences. That is underpinned by the confidence we have in the structure that Mickledore have in place for the trip. Everything/ everyone proved reliable.

Mrs Palmer, Kent

The holiday was well organised and everything ran smoothly. Having met other walkers on the trail either "going it alone" or using other tour operators I think Mickledore seems better in comparison especially on accommodation and taxi transfers. Keep up the good work.
