Speyside Way

The Speyside Way opened in 1981 and offers spectacular scenery in a region of Northeast Scotland famed for its Whisky Distilleries. It is a scenic walk along riverside tracks and through pinewoods, with plenty of opportunity to sample the local malt whiskies along the way.

Starting in Buckie on the Moray coast you will walk through the heart of malt whisky country and towards the foothills of the Cairngorms. Generally the way is straightforward, along paths and disused railway lines, through farmland, across hills and through splendid scenery of mixed woods, beside the river Spey.

- Finish in Aviemore, at the heart of the Cairngorms National Park.

Essential Info

Length	6 - 8 nights
Full Route Length	93 miles / 147 km
Shortest Break	65 miles / 104 km

Grade

Moderate to Challenging

This is a mostly easy and well signposted walk. A relaxing week in beautiful surroundings.

Terrain: Woodlands, forest and meadows along the Spey valley, with the odd section of more exposed hillside moorland. Much more rugged terrain through the hills on the Tomintouls Spur.

What's it like underfoot? Good tracks and paths. Smaller sections can be boggy or rocky. The Tomintoul Spur is rockier, rougher, and steeper!

How Much Up & Down? Not too much, except for the Tomintoul Spur, where the route climbs to over 500m in 2 occasions. Gentle rolling countryside for much of the route. A couple of bigger climbs of up to 200m, but nothing too strenuous.

Signposting: Good.

Navigation: The Tomintoul Spur covers higher, more remote ground, where you might encounter hill fog, so you must be able to navigate. Otherwise pretty straightforward. Keep your map and guidebook handy though!

Route

Buckie – Fochabers

Starting at the fishing port of Buckie on the Moray Firth, you will walk along an old coastal railway before emerging near Spey Bay. From here the way follows riverside tracks and paths into Fochabers.

Fochabers – Craigellachie

Today is easy walking on woodland paths, minor roads and forest tracks with gentle climbing in Ben Aigen forest. You will be rewarded by good views over the Spey valley. Craigellachie lies in the heart of the malt whisky country and is today's destination.

Craigellachie – Ballindalloch

Again easy walking on a disused railway line through mixed scenery of wooded valley, riverside and farmland. At Aberlour there is a distillery that can be visited.

Ballindalloch – Granttown-on-Spey

A rougher and more challenging walk today with good views. There are lovely pinewoods between Cromdale and Granttown-on-Spey, a small town with fine stone buildings.

Granttown-on-Spey – Aviemore

Today is easy walking using a mixture of disused railway lines, forest roads and unsurfaced tracks, amongst farmland, woodland and moorland of Strathspey. If the distance proves too much you can take the train from Boat of Garten for the last 6 miles. There are good views to be enjoyed today.

Additional Days

Ballindalloch

Lying between the banks of the River Spey and Ben Rinnes, Ballindalloch is a rural community, in the heart of Speyside. At its centre lies the magnificent Ballindalloch Castle, one of the most beautiful castles in Scotland and known as the 'pearl of the north'. A visit to the Castle and its gardens will be a real highlight of your walking holiday. Both the Cragganmore and Glenfarclas distilleries can be found in the small community of Ballindalloch and they do offer tours. There may also be the chance to play a round of golf at Ballindalloch Castle Golf Course.

Grantown-On-Spey

Grantown-on-Spey is an elegant Georgian town situated in the heart of the Spey Valley, surrounded by majestic scenery and supporting a wide variety of wildlife. Visitors can visit the Grantown Heritage Museum or the delightful Revack Estate with attractive gardens, an orchid house and nature trails. Grantown is famous for its superb 18-hole golf course.

Accommodation

Good accommodation and friendly hosts are an essential part of any holiday . We make a special effort to find the hidden gems, as well as keeping a close eye on the quality of the more mainstream accommodation.

As well as visiting the accommodation ourselves, we ask all our customers to complete a short evaluation on each night's accommodation, which then gives us an insight in to the day-to-day operation, and lets us spot any potential issues before they become a problem.

We have a variety of accommodation on the Speyside Way, including small country house hotels, guest houses, bed and breakfasts and farm house accommodation. In selecting the accommodation we look for helpful, friendly hosts with good quality, characterful accommodation close to the trail. Occasionally we may use a chain hotel.
