The Vale of Lorton

Discover one of the Lake District's best-kept secrets with this delightful walk through the picturesque Vale of Lorton. Located in the quiet northwest corner of the National Park, this 28 mile route takes you past the tranquil waters of Loweswater, Crummock Water and Buttermere, revealing a landscape of breathtaking beauty.

Following well-defined paths, forestry tracks, and country lanes the walking is for the most part easy and good underfoot. There's only one climb of any real note, and with short daily distances, you'll have plenty of time to pause, take in the spectacular scenery, and revel in the stillness of this unspoiled corner of the Lakes.

After spending the evening in the charming market town of Keswick, you'll be transferred to Whinlatter, England's only true mountain forest. From here, your journey begins with an easy descent to the pretty hamlet of Loweswater, unveiling stunning views of Crummock Water and the Buttermere fells.

Circling Loweswater, the trail continues through the peaceful Mosedale Valley before returning to the shores of Crummock Water and the village of Buttermere, nestled beneath towering fells.

The route's only significant climb takes you from Buttermere over fell sides to around 200m, before descending into the hushed Newlands Valley. Level walking leads back to Keswick, marking the completion of this stunning Lakeland circuit.

With short days and sublime scenery throughout, the Vale of Lorton is the perfect introduction to Lakeland walking.

Essential Info

Length	4 - 6 nights
Full Route Length	38 miles / 62 km

Grade

Easy to Moderate

The Vale of Lorton over 5 days is a pretty gentle walk by Lake District standards, generally on good paths, and with only moderate ascents and descents. The distances covered each day are short, giving you time to enjoy the landscape along the way.

Terrain: A mixture of forest paths, wooded lake shores and tracks following the lower slopes of the fells, with one, fairly low, mountain pass between Buttermere and Newlands.

What's it like underfoot? In the main, the paths and tracks followed on this route are well defined and maintained, although between Loweswater and Buttermere, the valley of Mosedale can often be wet underfoot and a touch rockier in places. There is a short section between Buttermere and Newlands where the path, while still well defined, becomes rougher as it crosses steeper ground

How Much Up & Down? Not too much for a Lakeland walk. There is around 290m (950ft) between Lorton and Loweswater, 260m (850ft) between Loweswater and Buttermere, and 470m (1550ft) between Buttermere and Newlands, but much less on the other days. The highest point on the trail 200m (650ft) is reached when crossing from Buttermere over into the Newlands Valley.

Signposting: None - this is one of our own routes.

Navigation: Not too difficult - the paths are well defined, but you will need to follow our route description and use the Ordnance Survey map supplied. As this is one of our own routes, there is no official guidebook.

Weather: You may be lucky enough to encounter warm, dry weather over the whole route and enjoy dry paths and tremendous views, but you must be prepared because the weather can change quickly. Good clothing and waterproofs essential!

Route

Keswick to Loweswater

Your walk begins in Whinlatter Forest Park which straddles Whinlatter Pass, between Bassenthwaite and Lorton. You will be taken here by taxi. Alternatively you may walk from Keswick, however this will add 6 miles, mostly uphill.

Starting at the top of the pass the first section is nearly all downhill! Using forest, field and fell side tracks the route makes its way to the Lakeland village of Lorton. Continuing on you will notice beautiful views across Crummock Water and Loweswater to the Buttermere fells. The route then skirts along the base of Grassmoor before crossing the end of Crummock Water and on to the hamlet of Loweswater.

Loweswater to Buttermere

You will walk through the remote valley of Mosedale before returning to the shores of Crummock Water to another quiet Lakeland hamlet of Buttermere, situated under the higher fells, between the lakes of Crummock Water and Buttermere.

Buttermere to Keswick

This stretch involves the only significant climb of the trip, as the route climbs out of Buttermere and back towards Keswick. It climbs to around 200m (650ft) on well defined paths over the fell sides. Once the pass is reached, the path drops down again to the peaceful Newlands Valley where the route meanders on before skirting the slopes of Catbells, en-route for Keswick and the end of this walk.

Accommodation

Good accommodation and friendly hosts are an essential part of any holiday. We make a special effort to find the hidden gems, as well as keeping a close eye on the quality of the more mainstream accommodation.

As well as visiting the accommodation ourselves, we ask all our customers to complete a short evaluation on each night's accommodation, which then gives us an insight in to the day-to-day operation, and lets us spot any potential issues before they become a problem.

One of the great features of our Vale of Lorton holiday is the quality of the accommodation which includes small country house hotels, guest houses, bed and breakfasts and farm house B&Bs. In selecting the accommodation we look for helpful, friendly hosts with good quality, characterful accommodation close to the trail. Occasionally we may use a chain hotel.

We are happy to book single rooms on this walk but cannot normally book more than two for any one group. Single room bookings include a supplement.
